Art Unit: 1743

1. Claims 1-3 are objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 1, part e) "cells" should be "cell". See also claims 2-3, parts c), d) and f). Appropriate correction is required.

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, line 8, "cell is capable of transferring... out of said cell" is unclear—is a means for transferring intended?

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

5. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Li et al.

6. Li teaches a cell 22, a supply of solvent circulating through detector 24, one-way valve 28 and line 26 into chamber 22, through filter 8 and out through chamber 12 and port 11 (col. 8, lines 47-60). Multiple sampling permits generation of a dissolution profile (abstract). Port 7 can be used to introduce the material to be tested (col. 6, line 10).

The filter and pistons function as a mixer (col. 6, line 58). The particles may be transferred out of cell 22 into chamber 27 by piston 20. Li teaches that conventionally, dissolution cells are held at a constant temperature (col. 1, lines 50-55).

7. Li fails to explicitly teach that the inventive cell has a temperature control means.

8. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the cell of Li with a temperature controller in order to perform dissolution at a constant temperature as was known in the art as taught by Li.

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

10. Claims 2-3 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

11. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art teaches dissolution testing by flowing a release medium through a cell containing a test sample, filtering to produce a particle-free stream to an analyzer, and analyzing the particle-free stream. The prior art fails to teach or suggest flowing the release medium through the cell so as to remove undissolved particles from the cell during the testing.
